References to Surgical Operations etc in the War of 1870

On September 6th at the hospital at Darmstadt Professor Lutter made a resection of the left hip-joint the injury was a bullet wound opening the joint and breaking the head of the femur. Besides this wound the patient had two others both however only of the soft parts - one in the face, and the other in the right side. A semilunar incision of about six inches in length was made in the gluteal region over the joint, which was then opened and the ligamentum teres divided; then, by inserting the foot and bending the knee slightly, the head of the bone was displaced sufficiently to allow a chain saw to be passed over it, and the operation was completed without trouble. * * There was some venous bleeding deep in the wound, which was rather difficult to staunch; but by plugging, this was effected. For some days the patient appeared to do well; but on the 11th he began to fall off, and died on the 13th, seven days after the operation of exhaustion, as verified by post mortem examination."

"I may here state, that up till now, in this hospital, gunshot wounds injuring the hip-joint or pelvic bones have all proved fatal."

Extracted from London Lancet. Sept 24, 1870. p. 452.

Dr Kausbaum of Munich, if we remember aright had performed seven resections of the knee-joint,
but with very bad results"

From London Lancet Oct 22, 1870 p. 549

Prof Kausbaum of Munich had the hardihood to perform resection of the knee thirty six times for gunshot wounds of the knee - 35 died, and amputation of the thigh was performed in the 36th case with a rapidly fatal result

From Lancet. Ann Ed. Feb 1871, p 80

Dr Fischer performed 34 resections of joints losing only 4 patients.

13 shoulder, 15 elbow, 3 foot, 1 knee, 1 hip
1 scapula.

See Ann Ed Lancet Feb 1871 p. 112.

— Among the physicians killed on the field, victims of their devotion, is M. Milliot. He was extracting a bullet from Colonel Colomieu, now in the hospital of Val-de-Grace, and had just successfully completed the operation, when he was killed on the spot.
